

POPE LEO MAY LIVE A WEEK

His General Condition Shows No Improvement, But He Holds His Own Well.

IS RESTING SOME

Cardinal Rampolla Urges All To Pray, and He Says, "Let Us Have Confidence."

Rome, July 18.—The pope's condition this morning is much the same; he still holds his own and the physicians in charge of him believe he will last perhaps a week longer or that he may die at any moment. Preparations for his death still continue. Cardinal Rampolla today telegraphed that for three days there had been no increase in danger and said: "Let us have confidence and pray."

Deny Cancer Story.
The story is steadily gaining currency that his holiness is suffering from cancer. Drs. Lippold and Mazzoni are both emphatic in their denials, but many even of the papal household credit the report implicitly.

In connection with the rumors, the fact is recalled that in 1899 Dr. Mazzoni removed a tumor from the pope's right side. Its nature could not be learned because the pontiff himself did not want it examined. It is now ascertained that it was undoubtedly a cancerous growth.

Treatment Inadequate.
When his holiness' present illness began it was at first diagnosed as pneumonia. When Dr. Rosconi was called into consultation he at first thought it was pleurisy. An examination of the pleuric fluid, however, after the first operation, is said to have presented no signs of the disease. It is declared to have contained malignant cancerous neoplasms, leaving no doubt that the tumor of 1899 had been of the same nature, and that the malady had returned in a new location.

Serious comments on the case are current in the medical profession here, which promises interesting consequences. It may be said on behalf of the pope's physicians, whether their first diagnosis was mistaken or not, that their treatment has been adequate and skillful.

Life Due to Nursing.
It would not have been radically different if the true nature of the disease had been known at the outset. Moreover, it is good nursing that is chiefly prolonging the life of his holiness. Nothing could exceed Dr. Lippold's assiduity and skill in this respect. To the doctors, the improvement in his holiness' condition was simply an addition to the long series of surprises which his recuperative power has given them. The re-accumulation of fluid in the pleuric cavity had led them to anticipate a marked change for the worse. Instead, the pontiff's pulse and temperature were exactly as on the preceding day, while his respiration showed a slight improvement.

Has Deathlike Appearance.
His appearance, indeed, was that of a man who could not live another hour. His rest Thursday night, however, was comparatively calm and evidently benefited him greatly. While he was unwilling that anyone should remain constantly in his room, whenever he awoke, he manifested his desire for companionship by ringing frequently for trivial causes. During his sleep he appeared like one already dead. His cheeks were sunken, his eyes hollow, his jaws prominent, and his skin tightly drawn over the bones. When awake, however, his brilliant black eyes retained all their luster.

Wants to Hear Mass.
As soon as he was fully aroused Friday morning he gave fresh proof of his perfect clearness of mind. "Today," he said, "is the feast of St. Leo. I have never failed to assist at mass since, when almost a boy, I came to Rome to participate in the jubilee of Leo XII. I wish to hear mass today."

His holiness' desire was immediately gratified by Monsignore Marzolini, who celebrated mass, as he did the day before, in the chapel adjoining the sickroom. The pontiff fully realizes the gravity of his case, but, apparently, not its imminence. This was demonstrated early in the morning when, informed that his confessor, Monsignore Pifferi, wished to see him, he replied, somewhat petulantly: "Not now. Tell him I shall not die without calling for him."

The gasoline engine in a launch belonging to Stillwater (Mich.) parties blew up opposite Hudson, and the party were returning home. All on board jumped into the water and were rescued by friends from the shore. Miss Emily Miller, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Miller of Oshkosh, was horribly burned at her home, and it is not thought that she will survive her injuries.

UNITED STATES JUDGE DEFENDS INJUNCTION

Supreme Justice Brewer Predicts Enlarged Scope in Use of Writ to Prevent Wrong.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 18.—Justice David J. Brewer of the United States supreme court, addressing the Iowa State Bar association here, defended the power of equitable injunction and its exercise by the federal courts, and predicted and advocated a wider scope for it. He said: "Unless the law is to place itself out of harmony with the advancing civilization, the right to prevent wrong should have an enlarged rather than a restricted scope. The cry of government by injunction will eventually die out, and it will be felt by all that the power is exercised only when necessity arises and when equity and justice demand."

"The diplomacy of the government is now on the highest plane," continued Justice Brewer. "Not the Machiavelli and Tallyrand type, but the John Hay type, marks this government among the most unselfish and most honest of the nations of the world."

RUSSIA ACCEPTS ALL CONDITIONS

Will Now Abide by the Terms of the Brussels Sugar Convention.

Berlin, July 18.—The Brussels correspondent of the Magdeburgische Zeitung says that Russia, which did not accept the Brussels sugar convention, has now decided to abide by its conditions, thus removing the last obstacle to the perfection of the international arrangement.

ORDER TROOPS FROM ORIENT.

Secretary Root Directs Return When Ships Are Available.

Washington, July 18.—In carrying out the program for the reduction of the force in the Philippines the secretary of war has directed that three regiments of cavalry and three regiments of infantry be returned to the United States as soon as transportation is available. The regiments having the longest service in the Philippines will be selected.

Root Approves Drill Plan.

Washington, July 18.—Secretary Root has approved the recommendation of the staff board that maneuvers for the Department of the Lakes be held at West Point, Ky., in October.

Waits Long to Wed.

San Francisco, July 18.—After ten years, Anna Heald, a San Francisco heiress, has started for London to wed Lieutenant Monteny-Jepson, one of the King's messengers.

FALLS FROM THE SIXTH STORY

Saginaw Girl Is Killed in Drop From Window.

Saginaw, Mich., July 18.—Miss Letitia J. Fowler, sister-in-law of George Grant, a well-known attorney here, met with a violent death. She went to Mr. Grant's office on the sixth floor of the Eddy building and in some unexplained manner fell from the window to the ground below. She was alone in the office when the accident happened.

STATE NOTES

J. S. Rawlings, general secretary of the Green Bay Y. M. C. A. for the last ten years, has resigned his position and will go on the road for a Philadelphia publishing house.

Thirty-eight warranty deeds and releases were filed at Sheboygan with the register of deeds by the Sheboygan Light, Power and Railway company and aggregating in value $6,875.

William Schroeder, aged 23 years, was fatally injured at Marshfield by the accidental discharge of his rifle. He stumbled over some roots in such a way as to discharge the weapon.

Stephen Bull of Racine chartered one of the cars of the Milwaukee electric railway and gave the 100 children at the Taylor orphan asylum an excursion to Waukesha Beach, where a picnic was enjoyed.

Julius Wilhelm was struck by a train last night near Fall Creek and the body was terribly mangled. An inquest indicated that the deceased had lain down on the track to sleep. He was a farmer and leaves a widow and several children.

J. Haferbacker, living in the town of Grand Chute, near Appleton, rose in the night to take a dose of pain killer and got hold of a bottle of poison. When found he was unconscious. George Steward, a farmer of Roscoe, near Beloit, has been missing for ten days, and his relatives fear he has met with foul play. He left to attend a funeral and has not been heard of since.

COTTON MILLS CLOSED DOWN

CORNERING OF COTTON AFFECTS EASTERN MILLS.

MUST WAIT THE NEW CROP

Seven Thousand Employees Are Now Out of Work at Fall River, Massachusetts.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Fall River, July 18.—As a result of the cornering of the cotton market by speculators seven thousand workmen in the cotton mills here have been thrown out of work and forty-five hundred more are to be let out next week.

No Supplies.
The cause for closing the factories is the lack of material. The raw cotton now costs more than the finished material and at the high prices asked but a small supply can be obtained for the factories.

Wait New Crop.
There is no relief in sight and the mill owners must wait until the new crop is grown before they can expect to start up again. This will mean much suffering among the laboring classes in the east.

WOULD OVERTHROW THE PORTUGAL KING

Officers in the Army Are Arrested for a Plot to Make Republic.

Berlin, July 18.—A dispatch from Lisbon says that officers of the Fifth Portuguese infantry have been arrested on the charge of conspiring against King Charles. They will be tried by court-martial.

Suspicion of a widespread conspiracy have been entertained for some time, the instigators being officers who were cashiered some time ago. Other regiments are said to be affected.

WILL IMPROVE RURAL GUARDS

Cuba's Force Is To Be Reorganized, and Their Pay Will Be Increased.

Havana, July 18.—Both houses of congress have passed bills for the reorganization and increase of pay of the rural guard. A bill has been passed which appropriates $80,000 to defray the expenses of a Cuban exhibit at the St. Louis exposition.

ALBANY'S FIRE

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Albany, July 18.—Fire this morning destroyed a number of business houses in the city. Loss, fifty thousand dollars.

Archbishop Katzer Rallies.
Fond du Lac, Wis., July 18.—Archbishop Katzer's condition Friday assumed a more hopeful aspect. He spent a restful night, more so than at any other time during the week, and he appeared much stronger.

Boy Kills Mother.

Cairo, Ill., July 18.—A 15-year-old boy was accidentally killed at Thebes by her 16-year-old son. The boy dragged a gun from under a bed and it was discharged, the ball striking Mrs. Davis and killing her instantly.

Girls Break Jail.

Potomac, Brandenburg, July 18.—Two hundred of the girls in the reformatory at Teltow revolted against the authorities of the institution, and overpowering the wardens broke down the doors and escaped.

Britain Asks Explanation.

London, July 18.—By the United States annexing the islands off Borneo an exceedingly delicate question is raised, and the British foreign office has asked Washington for an explanation.

AWFUL SCENE ON VOLGA RIVER BOAT

VESSEL BURNED, AND SIXTY PERISH LIKE RATS.

SECOND NEW YORK DISASTER

Passengers Were Caught in Their Cabins and Cremated, Suffering Terribly.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
St. Petersburg, July 18.—The steamer Peter was destroyed by fire last night in the Volga river and sixty of her passengers and crew were burned to death, being caught like rats between decks and unable to escape the flames.

Awful Scene.
It was a most awful scene and the unfortunate passengers and members of the crew made the scene even more horrible by their continued shrieks and cries for aid which could not come to them, owing to the rapidity with which the fire spread.

Few Saved.
The fire at the outset cut off the approaches to the boats and those saved were forced to jump into the Volga where they were picked up by other boats, floating on bits of the wreckage.

IRISH LAND BILL IS NEARLY READY

It Will Soon Pass Its Third Reading in the House of Lords.

London, July 18.—The report started in the house of commons this afternoon after a number of technical amendments in fulfillment of Irish Secretary Wyndham's promises while the bill was in committee. The measure will pass its third reading Tuesday and will then be sent to the house of lords, where no serious difficulties are anticipated.

MORE FAVORING PANAMA ROUTE

Several Colombian Congressmen Are in for Its Ratification—May Want More Money.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Panama indications point to the acceptance of the canal treaty. Thirty-four of the members favor it and the forty-six opposed are broken in their opposition and many may join the plan.

POLITICIANS GATHER

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Oyster Bay, July 18.—New York city politics are being discussed at the president's today. Mayor Low, Nicholas Murray Butler are present.

Red Cross Director.

Lexington, Ky., July 18.—W. P. Walton of this city has been appointed by the governor as a member of the national advisory board of the Red Cross Society of America as the state's representative.

Umpire Haskell Resigns.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 18.—Umpire Jack Haskell has resigned because President Hickey fined him $25 for being out two days at Columbus recently. Haskell claims he was ill in bed in Columbus.

Alleged Defaulter a Suicide.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 18.—G. O. Osborne of New York committed suicide at the Rockingham Hotel. It is alleged that he was wanted in New York as a defaulter.

Rich Man Commits Suicide.

Clifton Springs, N. Y., July 18.—Albert Finch, a retired banker of New York, whose country home is at Greenville, Orange county, committed suicide by hanging.

Camping in the rain is not so much fun as in the sunshine.

UNITED STATES MAY GET ISLANDS IN PACIFIC

Rumor That France Intends to Transfer Its Possessions to American Republic.

London, July 18.—A dispatch from Wellington, N. Z., calls attention to a rumor emanating from the French colony at Papeete, island of Tahiti, which is current in New Zealand that France intends to transfer its possessions in the eastern Pacific to the United States.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail says nothing is known of the rumor at the French war and colonial offices.

The French possessions in the eastern Pacific consist of the Society Islands, the most important of which are Tahiti and Moorea; the Tuamotu Islands, where the recent disastrous tidal wave occurred; the Leeward Islands, comprising Ralatea, Tahaa, Huahine and Borabora; the Tubuai and Raiatea groups, the island of Rapa, the Gambier Islands; Rurutu and Rimatara Islands, and the Marquesas Islands. Their total area is about 1,520 square miles and their population about 29,000.

KURDS PILLAGED MONKS' RETREAT

Monks at Supragop in Turkish Armenia Severely Injured, and Property Destroyed.

Constantinople, July 18.—The Armenian monastery at Supragop, in Turkish Armenia, has been pillaged by Kurds. A number of the monks were seriously injured and all portable property was stolen. A panic prevails in the district of Sassum, the scene of the previous massacre, and three villages have been abandoned.

ADVENTISTS ARE TO GO EAST

Headquarters to be Changed From Battle Creek to Washington.

Washington, July 18.—It is stated on good authority that the headquarters of the Seventh Day Adventist church will shortly be removed from Battle Creek, Mich., to Washington. Members of the executive committee of the church have been in Washington looking over the ground with a view to locating the permanent offices of the church and its publishing house here. It is not believed that the large sanitarium now conducted by the denomination at Battle Creek will be removed here, as a new building recently was built for the use of that enterprise. The purpose of the removal of the Adventists here is said to be the larger field for religious work that the east affords. If the headquarters of the church are brought here it is probable that a number of the families affiliated with the denomination will move from Battle Creek to Washington.

JEWISH SEMINARIES TO UNITE

Announcement Expected That Theological Schools Will Consolidate.

New York, July 18.—Arrangements have been perfected for the announcement of the plans in regard to the consolidation of the Jewish theological seminaries of the United States. The scheme has been for some time in the hands of a New York law firm. The result of the work will be made public, it is stated, in a few days.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES,

The Constitution defeated the Reliance in a cruise of the New York Yacht club; the new defender led at the finish, but lost on time.

CHICAGO HAS DAY OF REST

The Kellogg Switchboard Strike Is Greater Today Than in the Past Week.

HOLD CONFERENCE

Committees on Both Sides Plan To Take the Matter Up Again on Monday.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Chicago, Ill., July 18.—Quiet characterized the strike at the Kellogg company's plant today. Representatives of the union and the Kellogg company met in a conference this morning for some three hours.

Propositions Submitted.
The unions submitted propositions which may mean a settlement of the whole affair without any further demonstrations on either side. The questions will be taken up both by the Kellogg company and the unions in meetings to be held this evening.

Police Guard Plant

The police are closely guarding the plant today but the riot proclamation of the mayor and wet weather have tended to keep the mob in abeyance. The police are still arresting many men who threw stones at teamsters.

CYCLONE SWEEPS ILLINOIS TOWNS

Four Persons Were Killed and Many Are Fatally Injured at Streator.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)

Streator, Ill., July 18.—At least four persons killed, more than a score seriously if not fatally injured, and a property loss of $500,000 is the result of a tornado which swept through Streator at 6 o'clock Friday evening. The storm lasted only fifteen minutes, but when it had passed it left a wake of dead and dying persons and buildings which had been leveled to the ground.

A fall of rain that was almost a cloudburst accompanied the wind. Electric light wires are down everywhere, and night coming on almost immediately after the storm had passed, the search for the dead and injured is being prosecuted with the greatest difficulty.

Dead and Injured.

Edward Bivens, aged 35, killed by falling timbers; William Brown, colored, crushed under timbers; Harry Doyle, aged 45, crushed; A. G. Purcell, aged 28, crushed and died instantly.

Of the dead, Bivens, Brown and Doyle were killed at the race track, where the new grand stand was blown down onto a crowd which had sought shelter from the downpour. Most of the injured were taken from the ruins of this structure. Purcell was night watchman at the Vulcan Western works, and had not been on duty five minutes when he was killed.

Emington and Campus, two small towns on the Wabash railroad line, suffered severely from the storm. At Emington several houses were utterly demolished and four people were seriously injured. At Campus one man was killed, while two others sustained injuries which may prove fatal.

Four Are Dead at Mendota.

Mendota, Ill., July 20.—A cyclone which struck here at 5 o'clock Friday evening, cut a swath a block wide through the central portion of the town, wrecking almost every building in its path. Four persons are known to have been killed and at least a score seriously injured.

The dead: Miss Cora Boistdorf, 15 years old; Miss Ora Lundy, 19 years old; Schammel, boy 13 years old; Schammel, boy 4 years old.

The storm started southwest of the town and extended for fifteen miles. It came up suddenly, but those out of doors could hear it fully five minutes before it broke, giving them ample time to get into cellars. The campus of the Advent college is a wreck, being a mass of trees all twisted. The wires of the two telephone companies and the electric light wires are all down, and the town is in total darkness. Many living in town and country have lost horses, cattle, and dozens of buildings were wrecked.

Damage in Bureau County.

Princeton, Ill., July 20.—A cyclone passed through the northern part of Bureau county, damaging crops, farm buildings and residences. The home of Henry Smith, six miles north of Sheffield, was wrecked and Mr. Smith and his sister were both badly injured. The storm started near Mineral, at La Moille.

CLEVELAND HAS A SON

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Buzards Bay, July 18.—A son was born to ex-President Cleveland this morning. Family at Gray Gables.

FEDERATION HAS CALLED HOGAN

STATE LABOR FEDERATION PASSES STRINGENT RESOLUTIONS.

IT CENSURES HIM SEVERELY

Editor of Beloit's Labor Journal is Charged with Obtaining Business by Illegitimate Means.

Evidently the Wisconsin Federation of Labor is not at all in sympathy with the Beloit Labor Journal and its publisher, R. D. Hogan, a former Janesville man. A Manitowish dispatch says:

The Wisconsin Federation of Labor, at its session here Thursday, placed itself on record as opposed to men attempting to gain business from merchants by representing themselves as agents of organized labor, by the following resolution:

Whereas, a certain party of the name of Hogan and his colleagues, and also others, have in the past, and no doubt will in the future, impose upon the different local organizations and merchants in different localities, by presenting themselves as agents and representatives of organized labor, for their own private gain, to-wit: advertising schemes and so forth, be it

Resolved, that this convention severely censure Hogan and any such as come under our notice, and further be it

Resolved, that Mr. Hogan and his method of fraud be published in the official papers of the organized bodies, and where possible in the papers of the state, and be it further

Resolved, that no person, company or corporation be granted a right to solicit any business of any sort in any locality under the jurisdiction of this body without first getting the sanction of the central body of the locality where such business is being solicited, and where possible the merchants at large be notified.

The convention authorized the executive board to print the resolution in pamphlet form to circulate through the state.

The executive board drew up the resolution to be presented to the convention, as it has been their plan for some time to place the convention on record upon the subject of so-called labor papers.

"There have been several papers of this kind in the state which have gained support from business men by claiming themselves to be representatives of organized labor," said Secretary Fred Brockhausen.

"I believe this action of ours will put a stop to such work, and will warn merchants against giving their patronage to such papers. Organized labor does not care to be connected by implication with any scheme which may react upon it."

The action of the convention met with the full approval of the delegates and several speeches were made denouncing papers of the character of that published by Hogan.

ROCKFORD DATE IS PARTLY FIXED ON

Local Club Has Made Its Choice—Remains for Rockford to Approve.

Tuesday, July 28, was last evening fixed upon as the most convenient date for the return match of the Mississippi club with the Rockford County club. Sec. Trille of the Rockford club was accordingly notified that if his club finds no objection, the Bower City players will play the return in the home and home series on that day.

Although Rockford desired to play the match on some Friday, no Friday could be found within the coming few days which would not interfere with some other date.

WILL PROBATED AFTER CONTEST

Judge Grimm Hands Down Decision Adverse to the Contestants in Beloit Suit.

Judge Grimm, of Jefferson county, last evening handed down a decision admitting the will of the late Mrs. Minerva J. Mosher, of Beloit, to probate. The will disposed of an estate of about $2,500.

The contest was made on the ground that the deceased was insane at the time of making the will. Later on she was adjudged insane.

After hearing testimony Judge Grimm gave his decision adverse to the contestants.

FLOWERS TAKEN FROM GARDENS

Fourth Ward Residents Have Suffered from Depredations—The Gardens Near Road Robbed.

Lately some residents in the southern part of the city have been troubled by unknown persons picking flowers from their lawns and gardens. Flower beds laid out near to the streets in particular have been rifled of the pretty blossoms. Newspaper reports from all over the state indicate that the flower thief is not confined to any one locality. In every community there seems to be some one imbued with a spirit of vandalism who out of pure thoughtlessness or malice, destroys or carries away the plants which others have labored so hard to cultivate. A favorite place also for these vandals to carry on their work of destruction is in the cemeteries.

Camping in the rain is not so much fun as in the sunshine.

SHEEP RESPONSIBLE FOR FERTILE LAND

Golden Hoof of Sheep Is Foundation of British Agricultural Success.

To the "golden hoof" of the sheep, says one writer, has been attributed the foundation of English agriculture—the sheep anchor of British fertility of England's soil and the consecutive great yields for which that soil is so famous can be traced largely to the presence of sheep on almost every farm. In that country the fertility of the soil is an all-important factor, so much so that many of the land owners stipulate in the land leases that a certain amount of sheep shall be kept on a given amount of land. In the past the farmer in the middle west has given but little attention to the conservation of soil fertility.

Different Methods.
The method of farming followed by so many at the present day which involves continuous cropping, is fast drawing on the store of fertility. In not a few sections of Iowa at the present day the farmers are beginning to notice a falling off in the yield of their crops. This calls for a change of methods of farming. Less cultivated land with more grass land in order that live stock may be kept, is the only way to redeem worn-out soil. In this respect sheep are of the very first importance.

BIG MONEY FOR OPERA SOLOISTS

Stellar Successes Draw Almost Any Price—Definite Figures Are Impossible.

Anent the fancy figures which musical artists are popularly supposed to receive a late number of the Musical Leader and Concert Goer, the Chicago Journal which Florence French edits, has the following:

No more entertaining factional lives than the individual who writes of the salaries paid to opera singers. The person who has seen the Grand opera list probably doesn't exist, and it is very doubtful if one singer really knows the amount received by another. But there have been some very reasonable guesses.

It is said that before Terina created a furore at Covent Garden, in "Tosca" her services were valued at about $200 a night, so far as London and New York were concerned. She studied "Tosca" after it had been offered to a number of celebrities. The tale goes that after "Tosca" Terina's salary soared to $1,000 an appearance, which is a few hundred dollars less than the "singing price" of Emma Eames and Lillian Nordica. It is certain that, as a result of "Tosca" Terina is a factor to be reckoned within an opera season. Melba asked $1,700 a night to come to America last season, which may be one of the reasons she was absent.

Sometimes a regular salary is attached to a singer who gets a bonus for extra appearances. On this basis an opera statistician who claims to have glimpsed the financial secret, has compiled figures on the amounts that the opera people had individually to their credit when last seasons opera closed. This includes the earnings of the entire season in America which has lasted since last November: Alvarez $20,000; Van Dyck $30,000; Ed de Reszke, $30,000; de Marchi, $15,000; Van Rooy, $7,000; Scotti, $5,000; Blas, $5,000; Salignac, $5,000; Muhlmann, $4,000; Von Brandowski, $4,000; Calve, $4,000; Sembrich $50,000; Terina $25,000; Eames $25,000; Schumann Heink, $20,000; Galski, $15,000; Breval, $9,000; Adama, $6,000; Schoff, $6,000; Bauermeister, $3,000; Homer, $5,000; Blauvelt, $3,000; Djappel, $30,000; Blapham, $20,000.

Council meets on Monday night. Now is the chance for that dog license to be brought into play and money into the treasury.

AIRSHIPS BEING BUILT ALL OVER

Three Americans Firmly Believe That They Have Solved Difficult Problem.

Living in this age of invention and advanced subjects which were not even dreamed of a hundred years ago are now every day occurrences. The telegraph lines have spanned continents and the cables have brought the old and new world into close contact with each other. Steam vessels cross the Atlantic in seven days and less, and steam trains go from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast in less time. Electric roads have woven a network in our cities and interurbans are creeping through the country districts. Telephones place cities miles apart in close communication and talking distance.

Aerial Navigation.
Is it small wonder that having conquered the elements of the earth that inventors are now trying to solve the mysteries of the air. Aerial navigation has long been dreamed of and long been experimented upon. To stimulate this inventive thought the great St. Louis exposition has offered a prize of $100,000 for the best aerial machine exhibited. France and Germany and even England have had aerologists of note and inventors who have thought they have solved the problem only to fail at the critical moment. Three American inventors have now made machines and their progress will be watched with interest.

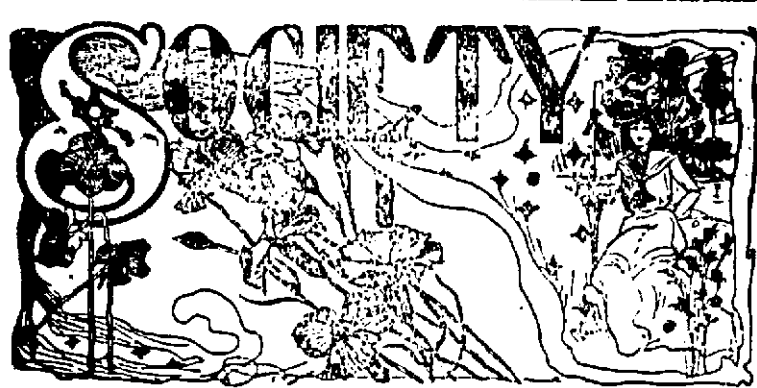

Model Machine.
W. M. Morris, a Monte Vista, (Col.), mining engineer, is very sanguine that he has solved the problem of aerial navigation. His machine will be 30 feet in diameter and 150 feet long when fully rigged. Aluminum will be the material used in its construction but no gas bag will be used as in other flying machines. Mr. Morris says his machine will travel 100 miles an hour without lunging, tilting or tipping. He is carefully guarding the details of his plans.

Another Machine.
E. A. Kindler, a Denver Colorado man has completed a model for an airship and conducted a satisfactory test. Mr. Kindler claims his machine will average a speed of eighty miles an hour. Safety appliances are a feature of the airship. Canvas flaps three feet wide extend entirely around the balloon. These are limp except in case of sudden descent when they open out like umbrellas or parachutes and are large enough to check the descent to a gentleness devoid of danger should the gas bags fail completely.

Motive Power.
Motive power is furnished by a storage battery. The framework which is made of aluminum and light steel tubing, with the motor battery and propeller, which is six feet from tip to tip and has four blades, will weigh about three hundred pounds. A test made recently of the model, was entirely satisfactory. The machine described a circle fifty feet in diameter, rising, dipping and finally descended to its moorings without a hitch in its mechanism. The machine will be truly a formidable one in the coming contest.

An Illinois Inventor.
Streator, Ill., has an airship planned by Mr. Relferscheid of that town. Relferscheid's machine consists of a balloon pointed at both ends and lying in a horizontal position. Around this balloon are strips of aluminum strong enough to make substantial framework. At each end are the propellers six in all, to be used in raising and lowering the machine, and to assist in guiding it. A six horse-power gasoline motor will provide the motive power and the balloon will be filled with hydrogen gas, and hermetically sealed. Large fans will provide a safety device which will permit the ship to slowly descend in case the balloon collapsed.

Speakers at the Epworth league convention in Detroit discussed the boy problem and paid tribute to the qualities of the American youth.

Society reigned supreme at the golf grounds this week. The weather has been so favorable, nearly every day different parties going out. The match games on Wednesday drew a large and fashionable crowd. On last Wednesday afternoon, the beautiful greens were well patronized by golf enthusiasts, while the porch made such a comfortable resting place for those that did not care to indulge in anything more strenuous. Among those that dined at the grounds on Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Myers, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Brownell and sister, Edward Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. McGiffin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carter, Mr. Victor Richardson, Mr. David Watt. The Misses Schlicker, Jackman, Richardson and Hostwick and Messrs. Evenson, Hill Clemmons, Baker, Dunn, Jackman and Rexford.

Mr. Britton and family of the firm of L. C. Hyde and Britton, bankers of Beloit, passed through the city in their automobile this week enroute for Milwaukee and vicinity. Mr. Britton's automobile is one of the finest in the country, costing $25,000. It is painted a dark green, has two seats is trimmed handsomely, and they make very fast time with it, going about the country.

Mrs. Eliza Burpee has spent the most of the past month in Chicago, visiting friends. She returned a week ago, and left for Geneva Lake to be the guest of Mrs. H. L. Patterson at her Glenwood cottage. Mrs. Burpee returned yesterday to attend the funeral of Mr. Eli Leavitt.

A party of ladies have gone into camp at Lake Lawn, on Delavan lake. They are chaperoned by Mrs. Charles Snyder. The party includes Miss Snyder of Rockford, Miss Irvine and Miss Snyder of this city.

Mr. E. S. Williams took several of the Lowell clerks up the river in his launch on Thursday. A picnic dinner was served at noon, and they all enjoyed their outing, returning toward evening.

CIRCUS COMING NEXT SATURDAY

The Wild West Show, with Many Features, is Billed for Janesville Then.

The most exciting and interesting entertainment Janesville has seen in years will be witnessed at the show grounds, Spring Brook, Eastern Avenue, next Saturday, July 25th, when the Luella Forepaugh-Fish Wild West shows will give its performance. This will be the only show of its name to exhibit in Janesville this season.

This organization, unquestionably the largest of its character, at present in America, is an overtowering monument of well directed zeal and energy. Combined with its real views of life in the great and almost trackless regions of the west, with its picturesque cowboys, fearless scouts, lasso throwers and bold riders, and dare-devil marksmen it presents new phases of a martial splendor and representing the gallant and brave cavaliers of the United States, the intrepid and famous warriors of the Czar governed Russia—those marvels of wild horsemanship—the Cossacks, the bold and quaintly attired Arabian Bedouin

HELEN KELLER AS SHE IS

This photograph shows Helen Keller in quite a different light from that in which she is usually considered. The little girl without sight or hearing has grown into a beautiful woman of many accomplishments, and she has written one of the most remarkable and interesting autobiographies, "The Story of My Life," published a few weeks ago. She has corresponded with many well-known men and women, and some of her bright letters are included in her book, which Doubleday, Page & Company have published.

The third annual tournament of the Wisconsin state golf association will be held July 30 and 31 and Aug. 1 on the Racine country club links. Rules of the United States Golf association and such local rules as may be adopted and posted at the club house will govern the tournament. The tournament is open to all legal residents of Wisconsin who are members of clubs belonging to the state association. All entries must be in the hands of the acting secretary, Dr. L. E. Hall of Racine, not later than noon, of July 27 accompanied by an entry fee of $2 for each entry.

The prizes which have been set up for the winner consist of a handsome gold medal to become the personal property of the state champion. He will also receive a beautiful loving cup valued at more than $100, a perpetual trophy, the property of the state association to remain in the hands of the winner until thirty days before the next tournament. In addition to these prizes there will be a prize for the runners up in each event and one for the person making the best score in the qualifying rounds.

Malachy Hogan declares that by his clean defeat of Jack Root, George Gardner now stands out by himself in the light heavy-weight division. He says:

George Gardner has as firm a hold on the title as Jeffries in the division above. He is undoubtedly a remarkable fighter, with more cleverness than he was credited with having. As a hitter he is a marvel and can stand all kinds of punishment without showing the white flag.

The story of his defeat of Root is already an old one, but the gossip of the mill has been renewed by an exhibition of the pictures of the encounter. The pictures only serve to emphasize Gardner's superiority over Root. They show the Lowell man the master of the situation at every stage of the battle, and while there were foul blows landed, such blows are not the ones that had anything to do with the termination of the bout in Gardner's favor.

Gardner must now be regarded as one of the foremost men in pugilism regardless of class. For three years he has been coming almost steadily to the front not by great brilliancy in the ring, but by continual plugging. He is not yet in position to be a contender for the heavy-weight championship because of Jeffries' great weight.

Of the men in the heavy weight class it is fair to say that only Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, and Jim Corbett can be ranked above Gardner. There is a strong belief among the men who saw the Buffalo fight that Gardner can whip Fitzsimmons, taking the age of the Cornishman into consideration. Gardner himself is ready to fight either Fitz or Jim Corbett, and has not put up the bars only against Jeffries. For a man of 165 pounds to meet a giant of 225 like Jeffries would be only folly supreme. The only chance, therefore, that Gardner has of breaking far into the heavy-weight division will have to come through the possible out-pointing of Jeffries or Corbett.

Mme. Patti, according to a communication received from her manager, "would like it thoroughly understood apropos of her coming farewell tour of this country that this is the only time in her artistic career she has ever authorized a farewell tour, and the fact is made quite clear in a letter to Mr. Grau, which is published." This will spread great consternation, no doubt, says the Musical Leader, among the malign persons who have been uttering gibes for years and years at what had seemed almost like a musical institution of the later nineteenth century. Now it seems that the Patti farewell tours have heretofore been a base invention and a fraud on the part of her managers, to which the diva has submitted in meekness and in silence. This is all the more remarkable since those who have had occasion to follow her relations with her managers have known that she has never been in the habit of submitting to other attempted managerial impositions, in meekness and silence.

The American Association has lost its best umpire. Jack Haskell has sent in his resignation owing to the fact that he had been fined $25 by President Hickey. Haskell says that he was accused of laying off two days in Columbus, O., without cause, when in reality he was sick in bed. He stated that he would not stand for any such fine and in consequence quit the association. It is bad enough to lose some of the umpires who are fairly good, but to have the very best umpire in the association go is a great misfortune. Haskell was head and shoulders above any umpire in either the association or Western League, President Hickey will not be able to replace him.

The meeting between McChesney, champion of the west and Water Boy the acknowledged leader of the East at Brighton Beach, Chicago next week will be a sporting event that will arouse the interest of every lover of racing from Puget Sound to Cape Cod.

Two such wonderful race horses, as they have not been seen since the peerless thoroughbreds, whose races made past turf history.

There is always the keenest rivalry between the East and West as to which has the champion race horse of the year. Last year Hermis was the crack three-year-old of the east, while McChesney was the acknowledged champion of any horse of its age in the West. Hermis, instead of upholding his three-year-old form has lost prestige by being beaten by horses which last year could not be considered in his class. Not so McChesney. He has grown into the champion which his three-year-old form gave promise he would. In every race he has packed the weight a champion is expected to carry and carried like the magnificent thoroughbred he is.

Track conditions have not daunted him and his races on a fast and slow track have been equally good. His every performance has stamped him a champion.

Water Boy has shown that in the East he is also the king of racers. His performances in his various starts have stamped him as a worthy foe of even the kingly McChesney. From a time standpoint the Haggin horse has run some remarkable races, notably his win of the Suburban Renewal, when he covered the mile and a quarter in 2:04 1/2.

Oden will no doubt be the jockey, who will pilot Water Boy, and as the boy has ridden him in his previous races he can be depended upon to give him a finished and perfect ride.

When these champions go into the starter's hands, they will carry at least a million and possibly several million dollars in wagers. Everyone in the west who is at all interested in racing will want to place a wager on the Smather's pride and the same will hold good for the followers of racing in the East. The at other time munificent purse of $10,000, that the Brighton Beach racing association will give to the winner will sink into insignificance beside the immense amounts in wagers that the horses will carry alone for the owners.

Theatrical speaking, her part is a "fat one" and if she continues with the character she will also be considered a fat one.

The route booked for "The Storiks" next season from a tourist's standpoint, is one of the most enjoyable imaginable.

It starts from Chicago, Sept. 1st, and extends as far north as Duluth, Minn., and from thence westward to Portland, and south to San Francisco where they will sojourn for two weeks, after which all the principal cities of Texas will be touched en route to New Orleans where they will appear during the Mardi Gras week. From there they will travel north eastward visiting every city and town of importance in the southern, eastern and middle states, working as far northward as Portland, Maine, thence through Canada and back to Chicago, making a complete circuit of the United States, a route considered the most extensive ever planned for one season's tour. It is estimated that each player will travel about 19,500 miles.

In staging last season's Drury Lane success, "Mother Goose" the coming fall, Klaw and Erlanger will follow the policy observed by them in producing "The Sleeping Beauty and The Beast" two seasons ago, and "Mr. Bluebird" at the Knickerbocker theatre last January. In these productions they threw away the original book, lyrics and music and utilized only the costumes, scenery and effects. John J. McNally has nearly completed the new American book for "Mother Goose" and Frederick Solomon is at work on an original score. "Mother Goose is the greatest spectacle ever presented at Drury Lane, and like its predecessors will be extensively elaborated by Klaw and Erlanger. Under the contract recently executed between Klaw and Erlanger and the directory of the Drury Lane Theater corporation of London this firm will control the American rights to all productions made at this theater during the coming six years.

Town Talks.

It was just a plain little wagon, with a poor, thin looking horse, a squeaky organ, an undersized man, two boys, thinly clad, and a pinched looking woman with a sad smile. The man played the organ, the boys sang and the man exhorted all to come to Christ and be saved. The horse with down cast head drew the wagon from place to place. It was a scene to be found on the streets of a very large city. Poor evangelists who take up their staff and gird their loins going forth to preach the Word of the Master to all people. Theatre-goers were starting for their evening's pleasure. Late shoppers were hurrying home and men and women of the streets were beginning to ply their vocations of the night. The audience was a mixed one. Men with silk hats and ladies with flashing jewels and silks. Newsboys, with the few papers left from the evening's sale, and business men who stopped just a moment. Valiantly did the little man tell his strange congregation that Christ died to save sinners and exhort all to turn to him from the paths of wickedness to that of eternal life and happiness. Even the organ seemed to wheeze more musically than ever as the two young boys began the hymn, "In the Sweet Bye and Bye." At the tail board of the wagon stood a little spice box and here through a hole in the cover the nickles and dimes dropped slowly in as the crowd began to break up.

"Min I am going to help," said one girl with rouge and powder, her vocation too truly portrayed in her face. "So am I," and two silver dollars went into the box to swell the contributions. The wages of sin. Will the recording angel stop in his travels to record this blood offering?

DR. MEURER'S ADDRESS.

Slowly but surely the Hague treaty for the Peaceful Solution of International Difficulties—in other words, the Magna Charta of International Law—is attracting the careful attention of scholars and professors of international law at the great universities of the world. That it will become the nucleus about which the international law of the future will be taught, and around which it will also develop, seems no longer doubtful.

At the three hundred and twenty-first anniversary of the University of Würzburg, on May 11, 1903, the newly elected rector for the coming year, Prof. Dr. Christian Meurer, famous as a jurist and international lawyer, took for the theme of his rectorial address the Hague treaty, and subjected that document to a searching but, on the whole, highly appreciative and laudatory criticism.

From his peroration we quote as follows: "The Hague Conference has erected for itself a noble monument in the history of international law. It did not, indeed, bring us eternal peace, but only ignorance would have considered this possible. As long as there are human beings with passion and with desires, there will be struggles; so long as there are states, war, like the sword of Damocles, will threaten humanity. We must be prepared for it whether we wish it or not. The Hague Conference distinctly recognized the possibility of war, and endeavored by a precise and humane development of the laws of war to stop arbitrariness and credulity. Only in the rarest instances—in disputes between states—is there existence or honor involved, and many an appeal to arms can be avoided. He who is fortunate enough to save his country one war, has deserved well for all humanity.

"At this point the treaty for the Peaceful Solution of International Difficulties comes into play. By it a lasting peace is not indeed assured, neither do locks give complete security against theft, and yet it pays to have them. Peace is menaced most by intentional incitements of one people against another, and by the irresponsible vagaries of public opinion. Self control on the part of the press is a better guarantee of peace than international treaties. President Staal emphasized at the beginning of the conference that there was no intention of pursuing chimeras, and no desire to institute Utopias. The conference deserves the testimonial that in this respect it succeeded. It did not forsake the sound basis of practical politics in its resolutions. Enthusiasm and criticism co-operated, and unitedly created a work of practical utility.

Called by a noble Emperor and furthered by a high minded queen, this great meeting, inspired by the spirit of concord, gave the best of promises, by its very make-up and membership. The agree treaties and declarations, constitute a milestone in the development of international law. It is not possible to go backward, and especially all the enthusiastic dreams of eternal peace found no support in the deliberations at the Hague. The so-called peace movement will do well to count this fact hereafter. On the other hand, the labors of the Peace Conference may and should be improved upon. In this regard the resolutions passed at the Hague indicate the proper field of labor. Let us take the course of the Peace Conference as a good omen for future advances."

INCREASED IMPORTS

The figures of increased imports, and decreased exports of iron and steel should not be hastily dismissed by our iron and steel manufacturers. We hope that they will lead them instead to dismiss the thought that the world's markets for iron and steel are to be easily captured and held. The activity in our export trade in iron and steel in the last few years was exceptional and abnormal. Not only is Europe adopting our improved methods of manufacture but it will always have cheap labor, and by these agencies it can hold its own markets and actively and aggressively contend for the possession of neutral markets. For our iron and steel industries, our home market must always be our best market.

The countries from which Japan imports mainly are from British India, China, the United States, Great Britain and Germany. The imports from these five countries which are producers of our principal imports, such as cotton, machineries, iron, petroleum, woolen fabrics, amounts to three-quarters of the total imports of Japan; and these imports are yearly increasing, except in China. Besides, the imports from Australia, Russian Asia, Dutch India, Austria and Belgium are lately increasing year by year. Of these, the Australian trade though at present not remarkable in value, will become more important in proportion to increased facilities of commercial intercourse between Australia and Japan, and in proportion to the development of woolen manufactures.

AMERICA AND THE HAGUE

The United States shares with the Emperor of Russia, the credit of The Hague Tribunal and the responsibility for it. The Emperor proposed it. At the time he proposed it he made a suggestion—which is all that some people remember about it—that it might be possible to arrange for a gradual disarmament.

The word frightened some of the European powers, and before the meeting at the Hague, the idea itself was virtually withdrawn for a time. But public opinion had declared itself in America. The people of America signified that an advance must be made. Mr. McKinley appointed a commission of delegates, which commanded the full confidence of the people. England was well disposed; Lord Pauncefote, always to be remembered as a pacificator, led the English delegation. Here were three of the "great powers" in accord.

It was more doubtful what his Majesty the Emperor of Germany, wanted or chose. It is now an open secret that when the congress opened at The Hague, his attitude was very doubtful. It is also certain, that in the adhesion which he gave to the plan he was not governed by any wish to second the Russian emperor. Not he studied the situation. He saw, he knew that not only the American government but the people of America believed that international justice was possible, as well as justice between man and man—possible on the same conditions. The Hague to co-operate with America, England and Russia. They did so, and the Permanent Tribunal was established.

Judge Penfield has just now given us, in his full and curious report, the details of the first great case brought before the Tribunal. It is, as it should have been, an American case, through and through. The plaintiff, so-called, was our government. The respondent was Mexico.

The case was really a case where we assumed the rights of the Catholic religious communities in California to the "Pious Fund" so called, which the Mexican republic held in trust when we took California. Speaking roughly, one would say the people of the United States were a protestant community who were maintaining the cause of some Catholic societies. Speaking roughly, we could say that the people of Mexico were Catholics. All the same, the two nations laid their case before the Tribunal. We named two judges, Mexico named two, and these named Martens as the fifth,—"the chief justice of Christendom." The Tribunal decided in favor of the United States which has appeared as the defender of the Catholic church. Now it is all over, it appears that all five of those judges were Protestants. This incident may be called a by-product in the business; but it is an admirable illustration of the way in which a court, truly supreme, may decide a great question between nations.

For the United States, and for every person in the United States who takes any lead in affairs, the present duty is to hold the Hague Tribunal and its work up to the attention of the world. Here is the practical solution. Here is the point for energetic work. Disarmament will take care of itself as soon as there is a better "arbitrament" than war.

LANGUAGE

An interesting question has arisen regarding the dispute about preferential treatment to be given to the creditors of Venezuela, which by agreement of all parties interested, has been submitted to a tribunal of The Hague Court, to be selected by the Emperor of Russia. According to the protocols signed between England, Germany, France and Italy, on the one side, and Venezuela on the other, the language to be used in the arbitration is to be English. According to Art. 33 of the Treaty, "The Tribunal shall decide upon the choice of the languages used by it self or to be used before it," but there can be no doubt that it is wholly within the power and scope of the litigating parties to agree upon the language in which the proceedings are to be held.

The other creditors of Venezuela, who are interested in the same question have meanwhile been invited to adhere to the protocols, and it appears that some of them object to the use of the English language. In fact, there has been a movement, more or less distinct in character, and naturally having its center of gravity in France and Belgium which seeks to make French the permanent language of the court. It is to be hoped that this movement will not succeed. While French is the language of diplomacy, and is likely to remain so for many years to come—since much of the literature of international law, including a large number of important treaties, has never been translated into any other language—it is very desirable that the international character of the Court itself should be preserved, in that every facility should be afforded to the various states for having recourse to it without the least possible difficulty. That the records will be translated into French for the benefit of all diplomats may be expected; in fact, it is hoped that the reports of the court which some day should appear in a series of uniform volumes will be published in four or five modern languages and any attempt to discriminate of all others, against English would be most absurd and unfortunate.

An analysis of the principal of the public debt of the United States shows that the debt of the United States, which in 1865 was $78.25 per capita, was in 1901 $13.45 per capita, and the interest charge, which in 1865 was $4.20 per capita, was in 1901 38c per capita; the lowest rate of interest on outstanding bonds in 1865 was 4 per cent, and of those there were but $90,000,000, against $245,000,000 in 5 per cent bonds, $1,213,000,000 at 6 per cent, and $671,000,000 at 7.3 per cent; while in 1901 practically one-half of the outstanding debt stood at 2 per cent, and even those bonds were selling at a premium in the markets.

They say that prosperity is shown by the manner in which the country develops. Certainly the numerous mining and promotion companies of this country would give her first place without a whimper on the part of other nations.

Ancient History

In the year 1696 one Class Tilly, a citizen of Harlem, in Holland, discovered a combination of oils and gums, which on trial proved a wonderful remedy for kidney trouble, also very healing for wounds and gravel. That was over three hundred years ago. This remedy is still made by the descendants of Class Tilly and sold by us for 10c the bottle. To get the genuine buy it of us. We have received a shipment direct from Holland. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets.

JAMES CASEY'S NARROW ESCAPE

WAS WASHED OVER THE DAM
WHILE AT WORK TODAY,

RESCUED WITH DIFFICULTY

One Man Got Into the River While Trying To Save Him—Dangerous Adventure.

James Casey of 54 Fifth avenue had a narrow escape from drowning early this afternoon. He with two companions, employed by the Jeffries company, were endeavoring to remove the few remaining flashboards on the dam. They were on a raft, roughly made up of two or three big timbers. The raft was held in place by two ropes fastened to the Fourth avenue bridge. In lowering the raft to the very edge of the waterfall, it became caught in the greater flow of water and was pulled slowly over the edge with terrific force. The two companions of Casey, who were on the upstream end of the raft, succeeded in crawling into a rowboat, but as the lower end of the logs overhanging the brink of the falls, the force of the torrent was too great and Casey could barely keep from being swept into the foaming torrent below him. For several seconds that seemed hours to the big crowd assembled on the banks, the raft hung on the edge of the dam.

Raft Broke
The crowd on the bridge were pulling frantically at the rope for all saw that it was a critical moment, but without avail. Slowly the tons of water that rushed with a mad roar into the lower river, drew raft and man further into its clutches. Suddenly with a loud crack, the timbers parted and Casey disappeared into the muddy whirlpools below. Soon appeared ahead of him the broken pieces of the raft, carried by the swift current directly against the supports of the lower railway bridge.

Raft Breaks Against Piles
The danger was greater than before for the man not only had to struggle against the waves but keep from being injured by the floating boards. As the raft hit the piles, it was turned on edge and again torn apart, the falling boards falling directly on the swimmer, who was struck in the chin and head, but managed to get hold of one of the boards and was carried swiftly down stream. Attempts were made to draw him to shore, but were unsuccessful. Wm. F. Kimball, in trying to reach Casey with a pole, was drawn into the stream and he stayed with the injured man until a boat from the fire department, manned by Ben Barriage, rescued the two.

Mills Flooded
Several of the flashboards were washed from the top of the dam by the force of the water, earlier in the day and the mill men decided that, as the works on both sides of the river were put out of business by the flood that the flashboards must be removed. This would lower the height of the water to some extent. This was what was being done when the breaking of the raft occurred.

WAS BIG SEASON FOR TABLE MAKERS

Local Furniture Factories Have Closed Successful Year—Big Meetings in Detroit.

Janesville, Beloit and Rockford furniture men have much to attract them to Chicago and Grand Rapids this month exhibits of high-class furniture at exhibitions, drawing them to those cities in large numbers. Both places have fine displays, and the lines for next fall appear to be ahead of all previous attempts. All indications show that the local factories will be kept running to full capacity next fall. The great number of buyers that have visited the exhibitions and the general feeling of prosperity that prevails throughout the country are good evidences of another prosperous year.

A Good Year
The season which closed in May was one of the best in the history of the local trade both from the quantity of business done and the prices obtained. Now the new lines have been displayed at Grand Rapids and Chicago and from the interest aroused it is assured they are going to catch on as well if not better than those shown a year ago.

RAILWAYS TAKE ALL PRECAUTIONS

Order Their Employees To Be on the Lookout for Any Conflations.

In the St. Paul offices the attention of the men has been called through notices posted, to the particular danger from fires during this season of the year. Employees are asked to see that all barrels, used for the purpose, in the buildings and bridge approaches of the company are kept filled with water and ready for immediate use. Care must be taken that no papers and rubbish collect under platforms and in corners about buildings. Special care must be taken of the fire preventive appliances in locomotives and the ash-pans of engines examined for holes, that there may be no fires started while engines are on the road.

STEEL BRIDGE HAS THE FAVOR

DID NOT ADVERTISE FOR A WOODEN STRUCTURE.

BIDS TO BE IN BY AUGUST 8

Work Will Start Immediately, if the Council Approves Figures—
Fourth Avenue Bridge Weak.

It appears that the new Court street bridge will be a steel structure rather than a wooden bridge, as at first seemed likely. When the council revoked their first determination to seek preys on a pile bridge they gave instructions that bids for both steel and wooden bridges be advertised for. The highway committee, in consultation with the city engineer and others, decided however, not to ask for figures on a wooden bridge.
Their reason for this was the fact that the specifications would necessarily vary so decidedly that the opposing bidders would not get together on their figures, as no comparison could be made between the two classes of structures.

People Want Steel

"In fact, we don't want a wooden bridge, anyway," said Alderman Lowell, chairman of the highway committee, as he this noon explained the considerations which influenced the decision to advertise for prices on steel work.

"The popular demand is for a modern steel bridge, and if the bids come within $16,000 or $17,000 I think the council will approve of it.
The Milwaukee man with whom we talked said that he was sure bids would not exceed that limit. If the figures are too high we can reject them all. We set the date for the bids early—August 8th, and if they are satisfactory work can commence at once, before the cold weather sets in. The bridge is in serious condition."

Upper Bridge Dangerous

At the Fourth avenue crossing the bridge over the river is rapidly approaching the condition of the lower structure. The piles are of necessity very long, owing to the depth of the water, and they are not driven deeply into the earth. Every winter when the ice has formed it has pulled the piles up a short distance, and the entire framework shakes perilously even under the tread of pedestrians.

At Monday's council meeting an order to repair the bridge will be introduced.

JANESVILLE MEN TO ATTEND MEETING

Manufacturers' Association Will Send Delegates to Gathering at Milwaukee.

Delegates will be sent by the Janesville Manufacturers' association to Milwaukee in September to share in the proposed organization of the state association. This decision was reached last evening at a meeting held at the Myers house to consider the invitation to cooperate with the Milwaukee Manufacturers' association.

E. A. Wadhams, president of the last named body, has earnestly urged the organization of such an association for the mutual benefit of all manufacturers of the state, making it possible to undertake projects of a wide-reaching scope.

DOWNPOUR WASHED STREET SURFACE

Damage Amounting To About Two Hundred Dollars Says Street
Commissioner.

Minor damage was done by last night's downpour on a wholesale scale, but there were none of the spectacular features of the last big storm.

The heavy deluge of water washed
the streets in all parts of the city, in places removing the top dressing from the roadway. Several sewers clogged, and the small rivers of water took to the centers of the streets and the sidewalks, and helped in the general work of destruction.

"Less damage was done than I expected," said Street Commissioner Watson. "Very few of the streets will need any considerable amount of repairing. Two hundred dollars worth of work will probably cover it."

At the intersection of Milton avenue and Milwaukee street the damage was greatest. The street car tracks were flooded and one of the cars was delayed for several hours last evening.

An amusing feature of the storm was the blocking of a score or two of people in the St. Paul depot. They took refuge there to escape the storm. The grounds are so low that the building was soon in the center of a lake of water. The ladies were rescued by several gallant men who put baggage trucks into service and wheeled the ladies across to comparatively dry land.

FLOOD GATES THREATENED

HEAVY RAINS CAUSED RIVER TO RISE RAPIDLY.

FLASH BOARDS WASHED AWAY

The Danger Is Now About Over, But Much Damage Might Have Been Done.

Rock river was cutting high capers
this morning as a result of the continued and heavy rain of yesterday.
At eight o'clock it was three feet higher than it has been all summer and there was a greater volume of water coming over the dam than there has been before at this season for years. Some of the lower docks above the Fourth avenue bridge were completely under water.

Flood Gates

The flood gate above the Ford mill was showing the force of the water, when the men employed by the Electric Co. came to work this morning.
The upper supporting timbers showed signs of giving away and one of the braces was already badly bent. A heavy beam was braced against the framework and unless more rain comes, it is thought, that the danger is past. If this gate should give away there is danger of the old mill being washed from its foundation by the rush of the water.

Flash Boards Weaken

Three of the flash-boards that were placed on the dam this spring gave away early in the day and were swept into the stream. Such a quantity of water was coming over, however, that their absence could hardly be noticed. About eight o'clock this morning a large tree came down and was the cause of one of the boards giving away.

Hinders Steamer

Unless the water goes down a foot or more, the big steamer that went up the river earlier in the day will be unable to reach her dock as she cannot pass under the lower framework of the railroad bridge.

The elevator belonging to the Milwaukee company is in bad shape as the water is from two inches to 3 feet deep in different parts of the cellar.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—The story opens with Alfred Bishop, a Georgia planter, closing a trade of $5,000 in mill stock for 5,000 acres of mountain land. Mrs. Bishop and their son Alan object to the trade. Mrs. Bishop's brother, Abner Daniel, tells a story. II.—The sale over. Bishop boasts that his land is on a prospective railroad. Tompkins, the former owner, has just unloaded a tract of 2,000 adjoining Bishop's. III.—Bishop goes to Atlanta to see Lawyer Perkins, who told him about the railroad. He has been deceived. The old man is so cast down that he returns without seeing his brother William or his daughter Adele, who is at her uncle's in Atlanta. IV.—Bishop has bought 20,000 acres of mountain land in all and mortgaged his plantation. Abner tells Rayburn to consult Miller, a land speculator. V.—Miller tells Alan about a dance at Darley. Alan's sweetheart, Dolly Barclay, will be there. Frank Hillhouse is attentive to Dolly. Craig, the banker. VI.—Dolly tells Alan that her father objects to his love quest. Barclay has also been caught on mountain land. VII and VIII.—Miller gives Alan cynical advice on love. Dolly's mother talks to her on her own love experiences. Dolly unhappy. IX.—Abner and Rev. Mr. Dole discuss religion. Pole Baker, the ex-moonshiner, whom Alan has reformed. X.—Abner goes to Barclay's. He tells Alan of his own sweetheart who died and he still loves her. Alan will hope and wait. XI and XII.—Alan goes to Miller with a project for a railroad to the land. He redeems Pole Baker from the prison gang. XIII.—Miller sends news by Dolly to Alan about his railroad project. She disputes Miller's cynical views of love. XIV.—Miller interests Tillman Wilson, president of the Southern Land and Timber company, in the mountain road. Loan of $25,000 arranged on deal finished with a verbal option for the company to take the land at $100,000. XVII and XVIII.—Miller meets Alan's sister Adele in Atlanta and is smitten. Craig's bank fails. Bishop loses his money. Dolly sends word to Alan she loves him more than ever. XIX and XX.—Miller takes the news of the failure to the Bishop. Cole Baker and Abner suspect that Craig is hiding his money.

CHAPTER XXI.

THE following morning Pole rose before daylight and rode to Darley. As he reached the place the first rays of the sun were touching the slate covered spire of the largest church in town. He went to a public wagon yard and hitched his horse to one of the long racks. A mountain family he knew slightly had camped in the yard, sleeping in their canvas covered wagon, and were making coffee over a little fire. Pole wanted a cup of the beverage, but he passed on into a grocery store across the street and bought a dime's worth of cheese and hardtack crackers. This was his breakfast. He washed it down with a dipper of water from the street well and sat around the store chatting with the clerk, who was sprinkling the floor and sweeping and dusting the long room. The clerk was a redheaded young man with a short, bristling mustache, and a suit of clothes that was too large for him. "Don't Mr. Craig stay around Fincher's warehouse a good deal?" Pole asked as the clerk rested for a moment on his broom near him. "Mighty nigh all day long," was the reply. "I'll say Mr. Fincher's some kin, I think." "On his wife's side," said Pole. "I want to see Mr. Craig. I wonder if he'll be down there this mornin'." "Purty apt," said the clerk. "Fincher's his best friend since his bu'st up, an' they are mighty thick. I reckon he gets the cold shoulder at a lot o' places." "You don't say?" "An' of course he wants somewhat to go besides home. In pashin' I've seed 'im a-durin' several times at Fincher's desk. They say he's got some notion o' workin' fer Fincher as his bookkeeper." "Well, he'll have to make a livin' some way," said Pole. The clerk laughed significantly. "Ef it ain't already made," said he with a smile. Pole stood up. "I don't think that's right," he said coldly. "Me n'r you n'r nobody hain't got no right to blurt at what we don't know nothin' about. Mr. Craig may 'a' lost ever cent he had."

Pole carried the discussion no further. Half an hour passed. Customers were coming in from the wagon yard and examining the wares on the counters and making slow purchases. The proprietor came in and let the clerk go to breakfast. Pole stood in the doorway looking up the street in the direction of Craig's residence. Presently he saw the ex-banker coming from the postoffice reading his mail. Pole stepped back into the store and let him go by; then he went to the door again and saw Craig go into Fincher's warehouse at the end of the next block of straggling, wooden buildings. Pole sauntered down the sidewalk in that direction, passing the front door of the warehouse without looking in. The door at the side of the house had a long platform before it, and on it Fincher, the proprietor, was weighing bales of hay which were being unloaded from several wagons by the countrymen who were disposing of it. "Hello, Mr. Fincher!" Pole greeted him familiarly. "Want any help unloadin'?" "Hello, Baker!" said Fincher, looking up from the blankbook in which he was recording the weights. "No, I reckon they can handle it all right." Fincher was a short, fat man, very bald and with a round, laughing face. He had known Pole a long time and considered him a most amusing character. "How do you come on, Pole?" "Oh, about as common. I jest thought them fellers looked sorter light-weight." The men on the wagon laughed as they thumped a bale of hay on to the platform. "You'd better dry up," one of them said. "We'll git the mayor to put you to work agin'."

"Well, he'll have to be quicker about it than he was the last time," said Pole dryly. Some one laughed lustily from behind a tall stack of wheat in bags in the warehouse. It was Lawyer Trabue. He came round and picked up Fincher's daily paper, as he did every morning, and sat down and began to read it. "Now you are talkin'," he said. "That was more rest in that job, Pole, than any you ever undertook. They tell me you didn't crack a rock." Fincher laughed as he closed his book and struck Baker with it playfully. "Pole was too tired to do that job," he said. "He was born that way." "Say, Mr. Trabue," retorted Pole, "did you ever hear how I got the best of Mr. Fincher in a chicken trade?" "I don't think I ever did, Pole," laughed the lawyer, expectantly. "How was it?" "Oh, come off, don't go over that again," said Fincher, frowning. "It was this way," said Pole, with a broad, wholesome grin. "My cousin, Bart Wilks, was runnin' the restaurant under the ear shed about two year ago. He was a new hand at the business, an' one day he had a awful rush. He got a telegram that a train load o' passengers had missed connection at Chattanooga an' would have to eat with him. He was powerful rattled, runnin' round like a dog after its tail. He knowed he'd have to have a lot o' fryin' chickens, an' he couldn't leave the restaurant, so he axed me if I'd take the money an' go out in town an' buy 'em fer 'im. I consented, an' struck Mr. Fincher, who was sellin' seek truck then. He 'lowed, you know, that I jest wanted one, or two at the outside, fer my own use, so when I seed a fine coop out in front an' axed the price o' 'em he kinder drawed on his beard till his mouth fell open an' studied how he could make the most out o' me. After awhile he said, 'Well, Pole, I'll make 'em 10 cents apiece if I pick 'em, an' 15 of you pick 'em.' I sorter scared the chickens around an' seed that was two or three they ones hidin' under the big ones, an' I seed what he was up to, but I was ready fer 'im. 'All right,' ses I, 'you pick 'em.' That was two or three luffers standin' round an' they all laughed at me when Mr. Fincher got down over the coop an' finally ketcht one about the size of a robin an' bawled it out. 'Keep on a-pickin',' ses I, an' he made a grab fer one a little bigger an' handed it up to me. Then he stuck his hands down in his pockets, doin' his best to keep from laughin'. The gang yelled then, but I wasn't done. 'Keep on a-pickin',' ses I. An' he got down agin. An', sir, I got that coop at about 4 cents apiece less'n he'd paid fer 'em. He tried to back, but the gang wouldn't let 'im. It was the cheapest lot o' chickens I ever seed. I turned the little ones out to fatten and made Wilks pay me the market price all round fer the bunch." "I'll be bound you made some'n right out o' it," said Trabue. "Fincher, did you ever hear how that scamp tuck in every merchant on this street about two year ago?" "Never heard anything except his own 'em all," said Fincher, with a laugh. "I could put 'im in the penitentiary fer it," affirmed the lawyer. "You know about that time that was a powerful rivalry goin' on among the storekeepers. They was movin' heaven an' earth to sell the big stocks. Well, one of the spryest in the lot, Joe Gaylord, noticed that Pole was powerful popular with mountain folks, an' he made 'im a proposition, bindin' 'im down to secrecy. He proposed to give Pole 10

"Is that that little lump gold or not?" knowed 'em or not, an' foller 'em around till they bought; then he'd walk up an' take in his part." "I got left once," said Pole, laughing with the others. "One gang that I stuck to all day went over to Melton an' bought." "Well, the merchants caught on after awhile an' stopped him," said Trabue, "but he made good money while he was at it. They'd 'a' sent 'im up fer it ef it hadn't been seen a good joke on 'em." "I don't know about that," replied Pole thoughtfully. "I was doin' all I agreed, an' ef they could afford to pay to per cent to anybody they mought as well 'a' paid it to me. I drawed trade to the whole town. The cigars an' whisky I give away amounted to a lot. I've set up many a night tellin' them mossbacks tales to make 'em laugh." "Well, ef you ever git into any trouble let me know," said Trabue as he rose to go. "I'll defend you at half price. You'd be a sight o' help to a lawyer. I'll be hanged ef I ever seed a better case 'an you made out in the mayor's court, an' you hadn't a thing to back it up with nuther." The hay was unloaded and the wagons driven away. Fincher stood eying Pole with admiration. "It's a fact," he said. "You could 'a' made some'n out o' yoreself ef you'd 'a' been educated an' had a showin'." Pole jerked his thumb over his shoulder at Craig, who was standing in the front door looking out into the street. "Everybody don't git a fair showin' in this world, Mr. Fincher," he said. "That man Craig hain't been treated right." The jovial expression died out of the merchant's face, and he leaned against the door jamb. "You are right thar," he said—"dead right. He's been mighty unlucky and had treated." Pole grasped the brim of his massive hat and drew it from his shaggy head. "It makes me so all fired mad sometimes, Mr. Fincher, to hear folks a-runnin' that man down that I want to fight. I ain't no religious man n'rsef, but I respect one, an' I've always put him down in my book as a good man." "So've I," said the merchant, and he looked toward the subject of their conversation and called out, "Craig, oh, Craig, come back heer a minute." Pole put on his hat and stared at the ground. He made a gesture as if of protest, but refrained from speaking. "What's wanted?" Craig came down to them. He was smoking a cigar and wore a comfortable look, as if he had been fighting a hard but successful fight and now heard only random shots from a fleeing enemy. "You ain a candidate fer office," laughed Fincher, "but nearly all men like to know they've got friends. This chap heer's been standin' up fer you. He says it makes him mad to hear folks talk agin you." "Oh, it's Baker!" exclaimed the ex-banker, shaking hands with Pole and beaming on him. "Well, I don't know a man I'd rather have fer a friend," he said smoothly. Pole tossed his head and looked straight into the speaker's eye. "I'm fer human justice, Mr. Craig," he said. "An' I don't think folks has treated you right. What man is thar that don't now an' then make mistakes, sir? You've always had means, an' I never was anything but a pore mountain boy, but I've always looked on you as a good man, a law abidin' man, an' I don't like to hear folks try to blame you fer what another man done. When you had plenty, I never come nigh you, because I knowed you belonged to one life an' me another, but now you are flat o' yore back, sir, I'm yore friend." Craig's face beamed. He pulled his beard; his eyes danced. "I'm glad there are men in the world like you, Baker," he said. "I say I'm glad, and I mean it." Fincher had begun to look over the figures in his book and walked to the front.

"Oh, my friendship ain't wuth nothin'," said Pole. "I know that. I never was in the shape to help nobody, but I know when a man's treated right or wrong." "Well, if you ever need assistance and I can help you, don't fail to call on me." Craig spoke with a tone of sincerity. Pole took a deep breath and lowered his voice, glancing cautiously into the house, as if fearful of being overheard. "Well, I do need advice, Mr. Craig," he said—"not money nor nothin' expensive. But I've laid awake night after night wishin' 'at I could run on some man of experience that I could ax fer advice an' that I could trust. Mr. Craig, I'll be blamed ef I don't feel like tellin' you some'n that never has passed my lips." Craig stared in interested astonishment. "Well, you can trust me, Baker," he said, "and, if I can advise you, why, I'll do it with pleasure." There was a cotton compress near by, with its vast sheels and platforms, and Pole looked at it steadily. He thrust his hand into his pants pocket and kept it there for a full minute; then he shook his head, drew out his hand and said: "I reckon I won't bother you today, Mr. Craig. Some day I'll come in town an' tell you, but—" Pole looked at the sun. "I reckon I'd better be goin'." "Hold on!" Craig caught Pole's arm. The ex-banker was a natural man. Despite his recent troubles he had his share of curiosity, and Pole's manner and words had aroused it to unwonted activity. "Hold on," he said. "What's your hurry? I've got time to spare if you have." Pole lunged his head for a moment in silence; then he looked the old man in the face. "Mr. Craig," he began in even a lower voice, "do you reckon thar's any gold in them mountains?" Pole nodded to the blue wave in the east. Craig was standing near a bale of cotton, and he sat down on it, first parting the tails of his long, black coat. "I don't know; there might be," he said, deeply interested and yet trying to appear indifferent. "There is plenty of it in the same range farther down about Dalonega." Pole had his hand in the right pocket of his rough jean trousers. "Is thar anybody in this town that could tell a piece of gold ef they seed it?" he asked. "Oh, a good many, I reckon," said Craig, a steady beam of excitement in his unsteady eye. "I can myself. I spent two years in the gold mines of California when I was a young man." "You don't say! I never knowed that," Pole had really heard of that fact, but his face was straight. He had managed to throw into it a most wonderful blending of fear and overcaution. "Oh, yes; I've had a good deal of experience in such things." "You don't say?" Pole was looking toward the compress again. Craig laughed out suddenly and put his hand on Pole's shoulder with a friendly, downward stroke. "You can trust me, Baker," he said persuasively, "and it may be that I could be of assistance to you." There was something like an actual tremor of agitation in Pole's rough hand as he drew his little nugget from its resting place at the bottom of his pocket. With a deep, drawn breath he handed it to Craig. "Is that thar little lump gold or not?" he asked. Craig started visibly as his eyes fell on the piece of gold. But he took it indifferently and examined it closely. "Where did you run across that?" he asked. "I want to know ef it's the pore thing," answered Pole. Craig made another examination, obviously to decide on the method he would apply to a situation that claimed all his interest. "I think it is," he said—"in fact, I know it is." Pole took it eagerly, thrust it back into his pocket and said: "Mr. Craig, I know whar thar's a vein o' that stuff twenty yards thick, runnin' clean through a mountain." "You do?" Craig actually paled under his suppressed excitement. "Yes, sir, an' I kin buy it, look, stock and barrel, fer five hundred dollars. The feller that owns it ud jump at it like a duck on a June bug. That's my secret, Mr. Craig. I hain't one dollar to my name, but from this day on I'm goin' to work hard an' save my money till I own that property. I'm a-goin' down to Atlanta next week, whar people don't know me, an' have a lump of it blazer 'n this examined, an' ef it's gold I'll own the land sooner or later." Craig glanced to the rear. "Come back here," he said. Opening a door at the end of the warehouse, he led Pole into a more retired spot, whar they would be free from possible interruption. Then in a most persuasive voice he continued: "Baker, you need a man of experience with you in this. Besides, if there is as much of—that stuff as you say there is, you wouldn't be able to use all you could make out of it. Now, it might take you a long time to get up the money to buy the land, and there is no telling what might happen in the meantime. I'm in a close place, but I could raise five hundred dollars or even a thousand. My friends still stick to me, you know. The truth is, Baker, I'd like the best in the world to be able to make money to pay back what some of my friends have lost through me." Pole hung his head. He seemed to be speaking half to himself and on the verge of a smile when he replied, "I'd like to see you pay back some of 'em, too, Mr. Craig." Craig laid his hand gently on Pole's shoulder. "How about lettin' me see the place, Baker?" he said. Pole hesitated, and then he met the ex-banker's look with the expression of a man who has resigned himself to a generous impulse.

"Well, some day when you are a-passin' my way stop in, an' I'll—" "How far is it?" broke in Craig, pulling his beard with unsteady fingers. "A good fifteen miles from heer," said Pole. Craig smiled. "Nothin' but an easy ride," he declared. "I've got a horse doin' nothing in the stable. What's to hinder us from going today—this mornin'—as soon as I can go for my horse?" "I don't keer," said Pole resignedly. "But could you manage to go without anybody knowin' whar you was bound fer?" "Easy enough," Craig laughed. He was really pleased with Pole's extreme caution. "Then you mought meet me out thar some'er." "A good idea, a good idea, Baker." "Do you know whar the Ducktown road crosses Holly creek at the foot o' Old Pine mountain?" "As well as I know whar my house is." Pole looked at the sun, shading his eyes with his hand. "Could you be thar by 11 o'clock?" "Easy enough, Baker." "Well, I'll meet you, I'm a-goin' to trust you, Mr. Craig, an' when you see the vein ef you think thar's enough money in it for two—but we can see about that later." "All right, Baker. I'll be there. But say," as Pole was moving away, "you are a drinkin' man and get a little off sometimes. You haven't said anything about this whar anybody?" Pole laughed reassuredly. "I never have been drunk enough to do that. Mr. Craig, an', whar's more, I never will be." To Be Continued.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, July 18, 1863.—New York, July 17.—There are six thousand troops in the city. No disturbance today. Thirty of the rioters were killed by the seventh regiment last night.

Berlin, Md., July 16.—The army of the Potomac is in this vicinity. How long it will remain is of course only known to Gen. Meade. It is probable that some days will be spent in recuperating both men and horses, both of whom have suffered from long and fatiguing marches.

Charleston and the forts are completely besieged. Five ironclads and five gunboats are off Sumter. Ten gunboats, one forty-gun frigate, and the new ironclads, will go over the bar tonight at high water. Three

WISCONSIN CROPS ARE VERY GOOD

The July Report of Secretary True Is Made Public To day.

The condition of crops in the state is considered by Secretary True, in his July crop report issued today, as particularly favorable. The reports of the correspondents in the several counties of the state show that weather conditions in Wisconsin have been by no means ideal, but that no serious adverse conditions prevailed. The July report says: During the past month the growth of crops has been seriously hindered in some parts of northern Wisconsin, by an excessive rainfall, though the hot weather of the past two weeks has forced all crops forward with an exceptional rapidity, and at date the condition of soil moisture is almost universally reported as favorable.

Pastures continue to be excellent and are proving a source of income to the dairyman and stock grower, not easily estimated, or generally appreciated.

The time hay crop of the state is immense but has been quite generally badly damaged in curing by repeated showers.

That part of the crop that remains uncured is becoming overripe, and falling off in feeding value.

The winter wheat crop of the state is no longer important, on account of the diminished acreage, while the yield per acre will be considerably less than last year.

Spring wheat is not very generally raised, and has been somewhat injured by rust, induced by the wet, hot weather of the past week or two. It will not make a full crop.

Rye was exceedingly promising up to the time of the June frost, when in some localities it was considerably damaged.

While the general appearance of the crop continues to be good, some correspondents report that heads are not well filled, and while the crop will doubtless be very nearly an average one, it will probably hardly reach the yield of last year, twenty-one bushels per acre.

Barley is a good crop, its only apparent drawback being that it is considerably lodged. The berry is good and the yield will be large.

The oat crop should be even better than last year, when the estimated yield per acre was forty bushels, as there is plenty of straw with less lodging, but many of our correspondents report rusting, which may affect yield. It is hoped, however, that this disease may not be widespread. Corn has made a phenomenal more ironclads arrived this afternoon. A scout reports that, during Lee's retreat, the temper of the rebels, both officers and men, was despondent, and they were in momentary expectation of an attack from our forces, the result of which, they admitted, must be disastrous.

Cincinnati, July 17.—Col. Runkle, with about 1500 men encountered Morgan's forces at Berlin, Jackson county, this afternoon. The enemy lost four killed. There was no loss on our side. Morgan moved off in an easterly direction. The rebels on Thursday, burned a steam saw mill, a bridge across the canal Jasper, and a bridge across the Scioto above Piketown. This morning they burned a flour mill and the railroad depot at Jackson.

growth since July 1, and has a better rating now than in our report a year ago, though the crop will need a favorable September for full development.

The stand of tobacco is good and the plants are growing rapidly. Farmers were hindered in setting by unfavorable weather, and as a result the fields are rather uneven in growth.

Potatoes are doing well, especially in the potato-growing districts of the state. The crop has suffered somewhat on heavy soils from too much moisture.

Bugs are reported as numerous and troublesome.

Apples will not be more than a half crop. They are dropping badly. Peas and flax in their respective districts, are making an excellent crop.

The annual amount of white clover this season, has furnished excellent pasturage for honey bees, and large quantities of excellent honey are being produced.

NURSES RESENT DISCIPLINE

Entire Staff of County Hospital at Milwaukee Quits Work.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 18.—Seven nurses at the county hospital, the entire staff, have gone on strike. They rebelled against the strict discipline enforced by Head Nurse Mrs. Maude Sullivan. The superintendent refused their demands for the discharge of Mrs. Sullivan until an investigation could be had and the young women all left at once. Mrs. Sullivan is doing what she can to care for the 130 patients. The county commissioners will be appealed to to arbitrate the difficulty.

Squadron Leaves England.

Portsmouth, July 18.—The American squadron, which has been the guest of England, has left Portsmouth. The flagship Kearsarge started on its speed trip for Frenchman's Bay, Me., while the other three vessels sailed for Lisbon.

Navies Show Nations' Amity.

London, July 18.—The Times in a three-column article emphasizes the growth of cordiality between the American and English navies as reflecting the ever-quickenening amity of the two nations.

Kurds Pillage Monastery.

Constantinople, July 18.—The Armenian monastery at Surpagan, near Erzincgan, Turkish Armenia, has been pillaged by Kurds. A number of the monks were seriously injured.

WHERE CAN GOULD SECURE VAST SUM?

How Can the New York Capitalist Procure Funds for the Proposed Road?

President George Gould's confirmation of the statement made a day or two ago, when he was in Pittsburg, in which he spoke authoritatively and enthusiastically of the completion within eighteen months of a transcontinental railway system, has been discussed all over the country, but with respect to the financial rather than the transportation or railway expansion features of the project. So far as one knows, at least any one who feels free to speak, Mr. Gould has financed or is now financing or expects to do that essential work without any appeal to underwriting syndicates in New York. Therefore, the question has been to day often put "Where does Mr. Gould get the funds with which this constructive work is being paid?"

Long after his father's death, one of the chief employments of Mr. Gould was the borrowing of money. Financiers have called upon him often to find him up to his ears almost literally in paper that he expected to be discounted. The capital of the Gould estate was so firmly fixed in the Missouri Pacific and Western Union and the Manhattan elevated properties that it was essential that there be heavy borrowing. Besides, Mr. Gould succeeded his father in the midst of demoralizing conditions that followed the silver panic and money famine of 1893.

If there is to be any heavy underwriting syndicate to finance these newly avowed plans, it is presumed it is to be in the family, not merely the family that bears the Gould name but what may be called the Gould group. But as it is well known that Mr. Gould has as warm friends and sympathetic advisers, although not publicly or formally identified with him in his undertakings, as John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie, it is probable that he knows where he can turn for funds, just as Mr. Carnegie knew when he planned the building of the tube manufacturing plant at Connetquot, that he could obtain, without going out of Pittsburg, and without appealing to any of the New Yorkers who are dexterous in the organization of underwriting syndicates, all the money that he needed for the plant.

STOCKS SHOWED A BETTER FORM

Large Volume of Business at Higher Prices in New York Yesterday.

There was a well sustained volume of business at the New York stock exchange yesterday and prices and sentiment improved considerably. Buyers were encouraged at the start by the improvement in London and the local movement on balance was on the side of purchases. The short interest covered extensively after the market had, in the early dealings, shown resistance to occasional efforts at depression, but there also was a steady absorption of the leading issues by the stronger class of buyers.

The news of the day was indifferent in character. Crop reports were not entirely satisfactory although they made no impairment of the recently reported improvement in agricultural conditions. Railroad earnings continued to show almost unbroken records of increases, and the monetary situation showed increased ease.

The prominent features of strength in the railway list were New York Central and St. Paul, both of which gained considerably more than 2 points. Illinois Central advanced over 3 points. Pennsylvania railway gained 2 points and a like improvement was scored by Atchafalpa. Through the general railway list the net advances approximated 2 points. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western enjoyed a maximum rise of 5 points, but subsequently lost part of the gain. The Eries were strong on a general understanding that the first stock was to be put on at 4 percent basis. Reading rose sharply on rumors of a new deal in connection with the property.

In the industrial group Amalgamated Copper was the subject of a sharp speculative contest in the early dealings, but the net result of the day was a gain of over 2 points. American Smelting and Refining re-time was over 2 points above yesterday's close. Colorado Fuel & Iron broke sharply and recovered only half the loss, but there was no surface developments to explain the movement. The other iron and steel stocks tended to recovery. Sugar Refining was raised sharply in the face of an advance in the price of the commodity, but later recovered more than the early decline. General Electric and Consolidated Gas rallied sharply from Thursday night figures.

"It was almost a miracle. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a terrible breaking out all over the body. I am very grateful." Miss Julia Filbridge, West Cornwall, Conn. Monarch over pain. Burns, cuts sprains, stings. Instant relief. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. At any drug store.

All the healing balsamic virtues of the Norway pine are concentrated in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, nature's own remedy for coughs and colds.

It is folly to suffer from that horrible plague of the night, itching piles. Doan's Ointment cures quickly and permanently. At any drug store, 50 cents.

"Alleged Poisoner Is Free.

Bowling Green, O., July 18.—George Schofield, the alleged poisoner of George Unsell and Chris Kohrer, is still at large.

HAY FEVER ABOLISHED

Relief for This Malady Discovered by Medical Science—Breathe Hyomei.

Among the important additions made to medical science in recent years, none is more notable than the positive announcement of a cure for hay fever.

While this disease is not regarded as fatal, it is certainly a most distressing malady, and if anything can be devised to cure it, a great boon will be conferred upon the human race.

Exhaustive experiments with Hyomei prove that this treatment will prevent all attacks of hay fever, if used two or three weeks before the annual appearance of the disease, and that it may be relied upon if used faithfully after the disease has begun, to relieve at once and afford a speedy cure.

People's Drug Co., have sold hundreds of Hyomei outfits for the treatment of the diseases of the respiratory organs under the agreement to refund the money if Hyomei did not afford relief.

In selling Hyomei for the cure of hay fever, they will continue this equitable plan, and want all who are subject to this distressing malady to begin its use at once, with the understanding that if it does not give satisfaction, the purchase price is to be refunded.

Stomach dosing cannot cure hay fever. A change of climate is the only treatment that has heretofore aborted an attack and Hyomei which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler coming with every outfit acts upon this principle, giving in your own home, a climate like that of the White Mountains or other health resorts.

COURT DECISION IS AGAINST PICKETING

Appellate Judges Administer Severe Rebuke to Labor Unions That Exceed the Law.

Chicago, July 18.—The Appellate court has affirmed without modification the injunction order issued by Judge Holdom forbidding the picketing of the Kellogg Switchboard plant. The decision was signed by the three jurists of the higher court, Judges Freeman, Baker and Steln.

The court took occasion in delivering its decision severely to censure the riotous and destructive methods of the strikers, declaring that "persuasion" by means of violence and show of overwhelming force cannot possibly be considered lawful. The injunction forbids also the threatening of the families of the employees or the intimidation of employees or persons who wish to work.

The court declares that mere picketing or patrolling, when the terms are used to designate mere watching or being in the street, should not be enjoined.

FINDS A BRIDE IN THE RIVER

Illinois Man About to Wed Young Woman Whom He Rescued.

Easton, Pa., July 18.—Miss Carrie Walter of Nazareth has gone to Chicago to meet her future husband. A year ago Miss Walter was visiting in the west. One day while fishing along the Mississippi river she fell into the water. A stranger who was within sight took off his coat, jumped into the river and brought Miss Walter safe to shore. The stranger was Geo. Baldwin of Dallas City, Ill. A correspondence sprung up between the couple, ending in an engagement. Miss Walter now goes west to meet Mr. Baldwin at Chicago, where the marriage ceremony will be performed.

Scots Insist on Bare Legs.
